2	Not necessarily. In my view, the curricula at the University are well structured and more fully, the department curricula and the concentrations are intended to prepare the students for their future endeavors. It's a very good school as well as the school of business.	12/3/2016 8:40 PM
3	Perhaps, media, social media, fractured information and groups affect connecting and filtering facts from fiction.	10/30/2016 12:26 PM
4	How to fully use email.	10/23/2016 3:20 PM
5	Maybe a class on public speaking. Prepare a video where you have to present on a certain topic for a certain amount of time. 10-15 minutes. In today's corporate world, public speaking whether it be in a meeting, or conference is frequent. It would be good for students to be adverse in that.	10/21/2016 8:35 PM
6	Provide students with much more networking opportunities.	10/18/2016 12:59 AM
7	Curriculum was fine, a public speaking or presentation course could be helpful.	10/11/2016 9:05 PM

13	Yes.	9/27/2016 12:33 PM
14	Recordings of lectures. Most classes had extremely limited interactions with professors and did not allow students to hear from professors unless there were questions. Since most MBA classes are offered in person, why not share the lectures with online students	9/27/2016 11:38 AM
15	The university and program provides a strong curriculum that made me feel prepared for any challenge that I may see in my professional career. I honestly think the stressing of ethical values behavior and integrity continues to motivate me to work and do things the right way. I think if students take it seriously and want to learn what is being taught the curriculum would show true.	9/24/2016 11:23 AM
16	A corporate tax class is crucial to an accounting major. While many employers will provide training, it would be majorly beneficial to offer a class that gives students a leg up when entering employment. This is also crucial for students who continue their education in a master's program. Students who have never studied corporate tax will have a much harder time adjusting to a tax class in a master's program.	9/23/2016 11:02 AM
17	It would be nice to go on a trip to a business to see how it works on a daily basis. That way we can see first hand the concepts we discuss in class.	9/23/2016 9:49 AM
18	No.	9/23/2016 9:34 AM
19	No.	9/23/2016 9:15 AM
20	There should be some type of class about personal finance. Components addressed should be how to balance a check book, what is a check book, what is direct deposit, how does direct deposit save me time, how does direct deposit reduce risk of theft, what is a W4, what are federal taxes, what are state taxes, why do I pay taxes. These are serious questions that I have received from students on campus who are from Freshmen to Seniors. It may need to be a one day addition to the University 111 class. I certainly think many of these students do not realize how all of these things work. This may not even be a college issue but certainly a workshop or something of the like would be helpful.	9/23/2016 7:21 AM

1	The department is equally matched with other regional universities. I think the university as well as the department should continue to improve as per the technological trends and new breakthroughs that will widen students horizons and make them competitive.	12/3/2016 8:40 PM
2	see above.	10/11/2016 9:05 PM
3	Incorporate more Skype/ Webinar class sessions	10/9/2016 9:41 PM
4	I was enrolled in several online classes with Dr. Metcalf. He requires you to wait until the assignments are due before you can submit them. This is a problem when you are a working adult. You should be able to work at your own pace. I had asked several times to take exams before the due dates. I was denied. I was only allowed to submit weekly assignments two weeks before they were due. I think this rule needs to be adjusted because these MBA classes and at an adult level you should not have to wait to submit assignments or take exams. You should have the flexible to work ahead and finish the classes before-hand, if possible. That's the purpose of online learning. You can't attend to the rigidity of a class environment.	9/27/2016 12:33 PM
5	Work behavior, public speaking, meeting behavior, and body language courses.	9/24/2016 11:23 AM
6	In the business law class, you should be reading court cases and be able to discuss what happened in each of them. Having students "create a business" is not the most beneficial way for students to learn how to manage a business. That type of project is better suited for an entrepreneurship class. Instead, have students look at existing companies or problems within existing companies and do case studies. Have students discuss the material. Have students do more group work, not just one big group project at the end of the semester. HIRE BETTER TEACHERS. There are too many professors at Gardner-Webb and in the business school that coast by and allow their students to do the same.	9/23/2016 11:02 AM
7	The curriculum was great.	9/23/2016 9:15 AM
